Teenage girl may have joined Kurds in Syrian conflict

A MISSING Kurdish teenager with Haringey links is believed to have travelled to Syria to fight against Islamic State fanatics.

Silhan Ocelik, pictured, has not been seen since October 27 when police say she left St Pancras International station on a Eurostar train. She was last seen in Belgium.

Friends and family of the 17-year-old, who lives in Highbury and has ties with the Kurdish Community Association in Portland Gardens, Haringay, think she is the first known British woman fighter to join the battle against Islamic State.

Police officers are looking into whether she is planning to join the ranks of the Kurdish YPJ, or Women's Defence Units, or offering humanitarian aid in the strife-torn border town of Kobani.

Arman Banirad, head of the Kurdish Community Association in Haringey, said: "Silhan is a reserved person, but very political and educated.

"We can't confirm that she is heading for Syria or what possibly goes through one's mind when they take such a decision.

"The Kurdish community here feels impotent and for some individuals when they see the images coming out of Syria and Iraq this is how they react.

"Everyone is obviously worried about her. She is a very good, strong person and we are hoping she is safe and well."

He said that Ms Ocelik had travelled with a male friend on the Eurostar trip.

Scotland Yard is appealing for help to trace her and have issued details internally. Police have handed out leaflets locally.

Anyone with information on her whereabouts is asked to call 020 7230 3068 or ring Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

WORKERS ESCAPE AS ROOF CAVES IN

LONDON FIRE BRIGADE

Disaster averted: Two builders working on this roof in West Green Road, Tottenham, had taken an early lunch break shortly before it collapsed on Friday

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

THESE dramatic pictures show the wreckage after a roof collapsed at a building in Tottenham.

Luckily, two builders working on it had decided to knock off early for their lunch break shortly before it caved in – otherwise they could have been killed.

An investigation by health and safety watchdogs was being carried out this week into the cause of the roof collapse at the property comprising flats above the Tottenham Town Bakery, in West Green Road, on Friday morning.

Remarkably, no one was injured as the residential part of the building was unoccupied at the time.

Nearby homes were evacuated while firefighters from the Urban Search and Rescue team, which specialises in assessing and shoring up collapsed structures, checked whether the building and those nearby were structurally safe, accompanied by officers from Haringey Council's building control department.

The incident caused major traffic disruption and part of West Green Road between Tottenham High Road and Lawrence Road was still shut on Monday as the operation to make the building safe continued.

Tottenham fire station manager Daniel Alie said: "There was a lot of damage to the roof and upper area of the building, but thankfully no injuries. If anyone had been in the loft or on the top floor when the roof caved in, it could have been a very different story."

Prescription delivery service 'may undermine pharmacies'

By Louise McCudden

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

AN ENFIELD campaign group for older residents is advising people of all ages not to make use of the free medication delivery service Pharmacy2U.

Monty Meth, president of the Over 50s forum, warned service users to think twice about signing up for the company's free delivery of NHS prescriptions.

Pharmacists report that residents have been receiving letters from Pharmacy2U, featuring the NHS logo as well as the company's own logo.

These people have then contacted the company under the mistaken belief that the invitation to sign up to the service comes directly from their own pharmacists.

As part of an NHS scheme to move towards digital prescriptions, GPs have introduced the NHS Electronic Prescription Service, whereby those with the authority to prescribe medication, such as GPs and practice nurses, can send prescriptions electronically to any dispenser the patient chooses.

Using Pharmacy2U, people can order medication online, over the telephone, or using the Pharmacy2U mobile app. To be delivered to their home, their workplace, or another location.

The company says the data is purchased from "reputable providers" in line with the best practice guidelines of the Direct Marketing Association.

But Mr Meth is worried the service could "undermine the role of the pharmacist in the community".

"When getting GP appointments is so hard, people are relying on their local chemist for advice and information," he said. "We're keen on developing the role of the pharmacist in the community. This could undermine it."

"The letters people are getting, inviting them to sign up for Pharmacy2U, are arguably targeted at older people. They talk about not having to go out in the cold. When you see the NHS logo, it gives the impression it's from your NHS chemist."

"I wish I knew where they're getting our information from. The letter I received had my full name, which is the name I'm registered with my doctor under, my address and my doctor's surgery. The chemist wouldn't give that information out and the surgery wouldn't dream of it."

Bhavna Patel, pharmacist at Parkview Pharmacy, in Bramley Road, Southgate, said: "People like the idea of a personal delivery, but most pharmacies in the area can do that anyway. Lots of people have been confused because they believe the letter comes from us. They email us to say sorry for not having signed up yet."

"A lot of people are worried about how the company got their details. It's not clear to people exactly who they are and if there is a real person to speak to. If mistakes happen, it can be very confusing. In an emergency it puts us in a very difficult situation. We could usually call up the surgery very quickly if somebody comes in with an empty bottle, but if their prescription goes elsewhere, it's hard."

Dr Julian Harrison, a pharmacist and a director at Pharmacy2U, said: "The service is well-established and used by thousands of patients who require regular medication."

"It tends to be a useful option for those who don't find a traditional high street pharmacy a convenient choice and is often popular with people who work long hours, the elderly and housebound and busy commuters who want to save time. We have an experienced and friendly customer service team, who receive excellent feedback from patients. You can also speak to a pharmacist for advice and guidance about your medication."

"We've been writing to tell patients that our repeat prescription service is now an option for them. The letter clearly states that it is from Pharmacy2U, so I am sorry if anyone has been confused by it."

ENFIELD Town's first French market was a stomping success.

It was run by events company Savoir-Fayre, which specialises in setting up authentic markets around the UK and Ireland.

A number of products were available, including ham, pastrami, fresh breads, pastries baked on-site, cakes, cheeses, and even clothes at the stall, which was set up at Fountain Island in Church Street on Friday.

Alan Sitkin, the council's cabinet member for economic development, said: "As well as the French stalls, there were also quality goods and produce from other European countries. It was wonderful to see the market so well attended."

"The council is working hard to promote its town centres and the businesses that are its lifeblood."

Mark Rudling, town centre manager for the Enfield Business and Retailers Association, said: "The market went extremely well. It brought so much life to the town centre. But as well as what it added, it really complemented the existing markets, which are also great places to shop."

"It was very well-received. People really enjoyed it. I look forward to more events like this in future. It's what the town centre is all about."

A spokesman for Savoir-Fayre added: "The event was a success thanks to the town centre management team and the council who initiated the visit of the market."

"This market targets a discerning audience by providing quality and exciting products. It was very well-received by the Enfield public."

"While there is no arrangement made for a subsequent visit at this stage, we are considering returning to Enfield once or twice a year."

Unlocked parks council meeting

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS were left fuming last week after the debate they had hoped to hear at the council meeting on Wednesday about whether the borough's parks should be left unlocked overnight was scrapped.

A motion had been tabled by Conservative group leader Terry Neville, calling on cabinet member for the environment Chris Bond to axe plans for 22 parks not to be padlocked at night.

Residents left the meeting in disgust just before 10pm after repeated attempts by Tory councillors to move the item up the agenda were voted down by the Labour group.

"It is just soul-destroying," Sue Younger, a member of the Friends of Broomfield Park and a Palmers Green resident, told the Advertiser.

She explained that she had attended the meeting specifically to hear the arguments surrounding the issue.

"Leaving the gates unlocked is an open invitation – it is just such a risk," she said. "We have already had a break-in at the community cafe in Broomfield Park. There is also evidence that a lot of drinking goes on in that park and a rough sleeper even broke into the conservatory. What would it be like if it was even easier for people to get in."

Peter Gibbs, the chairman of the federation of parks friends groups in the borough, also attended the meeting, only to be disappointed by the lack of debate on the issue.

Mr Gibbs, who is leading the fight against the proposal that would save the council £22,000 in overtime payments to park wardens, added: "The police have never been asked about this – they are not even mentioned in the document that accompanied the initial proposals.

Leading the fight: Peter Gibbs is opposed to proposals to leave parks unlocked at night

"No risk assessment has been undertaken and, most significantly, there is no proposal to consult meaningfully on any of this. The only concession we got out of Mr Bond at the scrutiny meeting, when the proposal was called-in, was that he would delay the decision until the new year."

row rages on as debate is stifled

ANNE-MARE SANDERSON

He added that it appeared as if the council was just going to “stuff the decision down our throats” after the motion tabled by the Conservative group was not discussed.

However, Mr Bond refutes the suggestion that police have not been consulted on the plans.

“The council buys some PCSOs to patrol the parks and they go where they are needed,” he said. “The reason why people might not see them is because they only go to parks when they are called. As for the suggestion that we are stuffing it down people’s throats – I am going out to meet friends groups and I have written to every friends group affected by these plans.”

Asked why the Labour group had not agreed to Conservative calls for a debate on the issue, Mr Bond said: “We agreed the position on this a fortnight ago. Officers are running around, doing their best, and we cannot let last-minute demands set the agenda.”

Workers in four-hour walkout from hospital

By Louise McCudden

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

STRIKING healthworkers at North Middlesex Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, joined forces with colleagues across London on Monday morning in the latest round of protests over an NHS pay freeze.

They took part in a four-hour stoppage as part of Unison's ongoing national dispute over the government's decision not to implement a one per cent rise for all staff recommended by a pay review body. It followed a four-hour walkout last month.

Nurses, ambulance paramedics, therapists, cooks, cleaners, healthcare assistants, administrative staff and other workers were involved.

Radiographers and midwives also held a picket at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield.

Six more days of action are planned during which union members will take their full breaks instead of working through them.

Linda Perks, Unison regional secretary, said: "NHS members don't take action often or lightly, but feel they had no option but to take a second day of action. Staff are on average 10 per cent worse off than when the coalition came to power. Their families are suffering and morale is hitting rock bottom.

"The NHS runs on the goodwill of its workers, but this government has shown utter contempt for them by refusing to give any pay increase to the vast majority this year and next."

A spokesman for North Mid said there was no disruption to services. A spokesman for the Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust said no services at Chase Farm were affected by the strike.

Laura targets scourge of psychological abuse

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A CAMPAIGNER who has challenged stereotypes about domestic violence delivered a key address during Enfield Council's White Ribbon Week.

Laura Richards is the director of the Paladin National Stalking Advocacy Service – an organisation that has succeeded in lobbying government to make stalking a criminal offence.

Its latest campaign has focused on toughening up the laws around domestic violence to criminalise so-called coercive behaviour.

Speaking before her speech, Ms Richards said: "Coercive behaviour can be defined as a range of controlling behaviours that can involve an abuser repeatedly calling or texting their victim, checking where they are, who they are with, even, in some cases, taking away someone's driving licence on the pretence that they want to help by giving them a lift everywhere. We have even heard of cases where women have been timed going to the bathroom, or where their partner insists on dressing them. They do everything they can to try and lower their victims' self-esteem."

And that's where Ms Richards hopes a change in the law can help.

She explains that at the moment many women are not reporting instances of extremely controlling behaviour because they know there is nothing police can do about it. But Ms Richards points out that if it was made into a criminal offence there might be a way out.

Although she acknowledges that securing convictions for a crime which leaves psychological rather than physical scars can be difficult, she says: "The same thing was said about stalking and we say now – as we did then – that it is about identifying practical points that agencies can check off."

Ultimately, she said the lobbying group "wants to close down the space of stalkers – not the space of the victims."

Ms Richards was speaking at the conference in the Dugdale Centre, London Road, Enfield Town, yesterday as part of White Ribbon Week aimed at raising awareness of domestic violence.

Speaking out: Laura Richards addresses this week's conference

SHAW THEATRE

WHERE DOES FATHER CHRISTMAS SLEEP?

It's that time of year again where Christmas is fast approaching, you will have a few people that are highly organised, and everything is already ready. But the most of us will have a vague idea and at the last minute a member of our family will suddenly spring something onto us and put a spanner in the works.

Don't get caught out this year, why not do what the organised Christmas shoppers do? Of course you are welcome to buy quilts and pillows for your nearest and dearest as a lovely warm Christmas present, but equally you could let them choose by giving them one of our vouchers. But what we wanted to suggest is that very often, your beds might need changing. But people generally will run out and buy a cheaper spare room bed having less money to spend on their bed in January or the next coming months. So let us suggest you put your bed into the spare room, (spare room bed problem solved) and now you buy yourself the bed you wanted. After all you are the important ones, you are in your bed all year long.

I READ Doug Taylor's article in the Advertiser of November 12 with a degree of bemusement.

Public services can only be provided if we have a good private sector to produce the growth in the economy necessary to pay for them.

The alternative is to pursue what Labour politicians love to do, borrow and tax its citizens. The reality is that pursuing such a policy results in ever higher taxation in order to repay the ever burgeoning debt.

Public services need to be provided, some by the public sector, but many can equally be provided privately.

We cannot continue to borrow at the rate that Mr Taylor would have us do without affecting the very services that he rightly cherishes. Since every £1million borrowed costs £85,000 in interest charges, it is not difficult to see how you can soon get to the position the last government found itself in, where it had borrowed far more than it could possibly afford to repay from revenue.

I agree that local government has taken a large share of government cuts, but the fact that the council was able to make £75m of reductions (as Mr Taylor claims) speaks volumes about how bloated it became during the Blair and Brown years.

If the Conservatives, when running the council between 2002 and 2010, had not managed to leave reserves of £80m, this council would now be on the brink of bankruptcy.

I want an efficient council and good services. But I want them provided at a cost taxpayers can afford.

Why take risks with our precious parks?

FROM a commonsense point of view, it is impossible to disagree with Councillor Joanne Laban's comments, in last week's issue, concerning the council's proposal to leave our parks open and insecure at night time.

This is indeed a matter of great public consternation and incredulity.

The anticipated saving is tiny whereas the risks of vandalism, violence, arson, and theft are enormous. The cost of dealing with just one incident of travellers pitching up in one of the parks would dwarf the hoped-for saving for all the parks in one year.

Properties around the perimeters of the parks would be at serious risk of burglary.

It is indeed regrettable that the council attempted to push through this crass idea without consultation. Fortunately it has been found out in time – and it is equally telling that the Labour councillors are following their party line on this subject rather than listening to the very concerned views of the great majority of residents.

Greed has left cafe regulars out in cold

I READ with interest the story relating to the closure of the cafe at Whitewebbs Park/golf course.

With all the new paths that Enfield Council is currently building or planning to build around Forty Hall/Whitewebbs, it seems a shame that greed has again left residents and regular users of the cafe out in the cold.

The cafe has been unnecessarily tendered three times over the last few years with the council refusing to give decent terms for the contract to allow the cafe owners to receive a decent return on investment.

The council has shown nothing but lack of judgement and lack of commonsense on this occasion.

The closure of the previous mobile cafe is not surprising with the council refusing to grant another one-year licence to the previous owners after they put in substantial effort and finance to make the area comfortable for users.

The cafe is a social hub throughout all seasons and used by dog walkers, horse riders, golfers, tradesman and even the emergency services for the provision of lunch tea/coffee. It's a disgrace that once again residents have to suffer due to the greed of the council.

Landlords are an easy target

THE sentiments expressed in Councillor Ahmet Oykener's letter in the Advertiser on October 29 are not just wrong, but also display an extraordinary ignorance of the issues surrounding private tenancies.

He appears not to know that landlords are already, quite rightly, accountable. The statute books are full of legislation regulating private tenancies.

The council's plan to penalise landlords is based solely on the spurious association of antisocial behaviour with private tenancies. Antisocial behaviour is not caused by landlords; it is a consequence of individuals not sharing in the welfare of their communities.

If a tenant drops rubbish in the street, should the landlord be held responsible? If they do not send their children to school, or fall down drunk, or sit in a park swearing at passers-by, is it because their landlord made them do it? Obviously no.

The licence proposed by the council will have no effect on antisocial behaviour and will inevitably drive up the cost of housing for vulnerable people. It is nothing but an unjust tax on an easily targeted group. The vast majority of private landlords protect and care deeply for the people who live in their properties.

Traffic measures have little support

A COUNCIL-led meeting on November 20 at Scouts HQ, Wolves Lane, Palmers Green, inviting residents to propose traffic arrangements for a Wolves Lane Quieter Neighbourhood was attended by just 12 residents from 3,500 properties in an area bordered by the A10, A406 and Green Lanes.

If in spite of such poor attendance Enfield Council presses on with the project. It cannot be right that 12 residents should determine traffic circulation in such a large area when it is obvious there is no support for change.

We have not been told the cost of the exercise, but the council is short of cash and the money would be better spent on locking our parks at night.

No sign of new war memorial

IN the spring of 2011, Enfield Council proposed to erect a memorial to commemorate Enfield's servicemen and women who died for their country in all Britain's conflicts following World War II.

The council also considered it fitting that the memorial would be ready in time to mark the 100th anniversary of the outbreak of World War I, coinciding with Remembrance Sunday this year.

Sadly, three-and-a-half years have passed and Remembrance Day has come and gone with no signs of the memorial – nor, for that matter, has any publicity been forthcoming as to the progress towards implementation.

My understanding now is that the memorial will be ready for 2015, which seems better late than never – but the object of the council's original commitment to the timing with the World War I anniversary is now lost.

Can we believe these promises?

I HAVE received a leaflet from Joan Ryan informing me that Nick de Bois and his government closed Chase Farm A&E and maternity services – but she fails to admit it was her Labour government that laid the foundations for this local disaster.

I remember when she was trying to get elected the first time around in 1997 that she campaigned for Chase Farm to be linked with Barnet.

It was going to solve all our local NHS problems and Chase Farm would have a rosy future, so should we accept her latest promises of jam tomorrow?

When this Labour-inspired plan came to be, Ms Ryan was on the picket lines pretending to care when she was really only there to save her own skin from the disaster she could see this whole rotten deal had become.

She is a hypocrite and no one I have spoken to can understand how or why she came to be selected to stand again in Enfield.

Campaign to fight plan for school on play area

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COMMUNITY campaigner has launched a bid to halt the building of a school on an open space that will be swallowed up by the Meridian Water development.

Grace Kamall, of Dysons Road, Edmonton, is chairwoman of Residents of Edmonton Angel Community Together and is furious that the Ladysmith Road open space near her house may be transformed from a children's play area into a school that will cater for the children of the households that will make up the Meridian Water development.

"We have no problem whatsoever with a school being built for the new homes – and it is great that it looks as though the transport links will be improved," she told the Advertiser.

"But what is very frustrating is that each area has their own green space – and we have none. If you look at the statistics, our area has the highest unemployment level, high levels of mental health problems.

"We are neglected here – we see that the other side of the North Circular gets everything, and we get nothing.

"When the plans for Meridian Water came along, we said we were fine with it – as long as we lost nothing.

"We have never been able to have a say about anything that happens in our neighbourhood."

However, an Enfield Council spokesman has insisted that the people in Dysons Road have not been forgotten about.

He added: "The Meridian Water masterplan that was adopted in July 2013 shows an option for a school to be built on this open space and also refers to the creation of a public park with children's play space.

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Angry: Alf Linney with his two-year-old granddaughter Jessica, and Mohamed and Grace Kamall stand where a children's playground used to be

"This is currently being built on land off Conduit Lane and is known as Angel Gardens. Phase one of this new park, including new play equipment and children's play space, is under construction and is scheduled to be opened in early 2015, with the remainder of the park opened by the end of the year."

under the Thames at Silvertown

We'd like your opinion on a new tunnel at Silvertown, which is part of a package of proposed river crossings. The new tunnel will:

- Provide a new road crossing across the Thames
- Reduce queuing at the Blackwall Tunnel
- Support the creation of new jobs and homes
- Create the opportunity for new public transport connections

We'd also like your views on a range of charging options that are being proposed for the Blackwall and Silvertown Tunnels, once the Silvertown Tunnel opens in the early 2020s. This would help manage demand and fund the new tunnel.

A SENIOR Labour figure in the borough has been suspended indefinitely from representing the party at any level.

Ben Maloney, who did not stand for re-election as secretary of the Southgate Constituency Labour Party at its annual meeting last week, has been disciplined after an inflammatory letter from him appeared on the political gossip website order-order.com

The letter was addressed to the Southgate Labour Party chairman, announcing his intention to resign and asking "that the behaviour of Joan Ryan and Ibrahim Dogus be raised at the next executive committee meeting and a decision taken as to whether they need to be investigated by the CLP"

If you are a denture wearer then this article may be of some interest to you!!
If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:

• Do not fit as well as your gums as they used to?

• Are they loose?

• Do not cut food as well as they used to?

• Do they make your face look older?

• Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or

• Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

A more direct, rapid and personalised service, that can be delivered to you in the comfort of your own home or at my day clinic in Edmonton.

Labour man banned in campaign rumpus

Ms Ryan and Mr Dogus were accused of diverting resources from the campaign to elect Bambos Charalambous in Enfield Southgate at the next general election and trying to focus the campaign on the key seat of Enfield North, where Ms Ryan, who was the MP from 1997 to 2010, is the prospective parliamentary candidate.

A spokesman for the London Labour Party said: "Ben Maloney has been suspended from representing the Labour Party at any level." Its party membership has not been suspended.

Mr Maloney said: "How can we hold other people to account when we can't even hold our own party members and representatives to account ourselves. I don't think Joan Ryan should have been as the parliamentary candidate for Enfield North."

Housing: 'No progress'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

COUNCILLORS have become embroiled in a bitter war of words as Tory politicians slammed the Labour administration's "negligible" progress on house building programmes.

At the meeting of the full council in the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, last Wednesday, Conservative group Terry Neville used the opposition business slot to accuse Labour of dragging their heels.

He blamed the last government for the current housing crisis, saying it was the "uncontrolled immigration into the UK, both from within and outside the European Union," which he said Labour allowed in the early 2000s, which was responsible for overpopulation "with no increase in housing provision".

Attacking the council's record on the Meridian Water development in Upper Edmonton, Mr Neville attacked council chiefs for not setting up compulsory purchase orders for the land.

However, council leader Doug Taylor hit back.

"The Conservatives didn't buy the land when they were in power in 2007/2008 – when it would have been substantially cheaper," he said.

"There was no plan to improve the sewage works. It wasn't until 2014 that a plan was put in place to clean up the smell at Deepfams, a plan put in place by a Labour administration."

However, Mr Neville continued to attack the council's record – saying that there had been no progress made on the small sites that had long been earmarked for housing.

Defending the lack of action on sites including the Parsonage Lane development in Enfield, Mr Taylor added: "Over and over again members opposite have opposed housing plans."

After the debate on the opposition business the council moved to pass a motion to develop the Bury Street West Parks depot site into housing.

All Conservative councillors abstained from the vote.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Granny Gwen raises funds for treatment of sickle cell

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A GRANDMOTHER chose to celebrate the beginning of her ninth decade by raising more than £5,000 to help a hospital treat sickle cell anaemia.

Gwen Pemberton, of Parkstone Avenue, Edmonton, turned 80 in July with a party at the Savoy hotel in central London – but she requested that instead of lavish gifts her friends and family should donate money to help towards buying a new, specialised transfusion machine for North Middlesex Hospital's haematology department.

Gwen lost her son Wayne to the condition in 1974 when the Enfield Grammar student was just 16 years old.

November 29 will mark the 40th anniversary of his death and she has now announced that since launching her fundraising bid on her birthday, she has raised £5,485 that she will be donating to the hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton.

She told the Advertiser: "They have this machine in central London that treats the blood – but they don't have it in North Mid – so people who suffer have to travel all the way into town for treatment.

"So I decided I wanted to raise money to

In loving memory: Gwen Pemberton, whose son Wayne died of the illness, is supporting research into sickle cell disease and has raised more than £5,000 so far help them get a machine for local people."

One of Gwen's other sons, Robin, also suffers from the disease and she told the Advertiser that she couldn't believe the generosity of friends and family who saw to it that money for the cause came flooding in.

"It was so beautiful – people gave so much. Some people gave as much as £200 – it was incredible."

Although it has been 40 years since her son Wayne's death, the injustice of losing her son when he was just 16 years old continues to hurt.

"In those days no one knew how to treat it," added Gwen. "I didn't even know about it until Wayne was diagnosed.

"Now the doctors and consultants know so much more – that's why I wanted to do this – so that it helps someone else's son."

Anyone still wishes to make a donation to the Sickle Cell Charity in Wayne's memory can do so through the haematology department at North Middlesex Hospital.

Campaign to encourage testing aims to combat the lurking threat of HIV

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS in Enfield are being urged to take control of their sexual health by getting an HIV test after a survey revealed that one in five people with the virus do not know they have it.

In the run-up to this year's World Aids Day on Monday, Enfield Council has launched a fortnight's awareness and poster campaign.

According to government statistics, four in 1,000 people aged between 15 and 59 in Enfield have HIV, compared with an average of two per 1,000 in England.

Health Protection Agency figures showed that those most at risk of HIV infection in Enfield between 2007 and 2011 were heterosexual black African women followed by heterosexual black African men – and 65 per cent of people were diagnosed late in 2011, compared with 61 per cent across the capital.

Rohini Simbodayal, cabinet member for public health, urged people to get tested. She said: "HIV is much more treatable than it was so early diagnosis will go a long way to improving and maintaining health and ensuring there is no onward transmission of the virus."

The drive aims to encourage people to get an HIV test and use condoms to protect themselves and their partners from contracting the virus.

North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, is one of the largest specialist services in the UK for patients with HIV.

For more information, visit www.nhs.uk and www.enfield.gov.uk/sexualhealth or call the sexual health helpline on 0300 150 7123.

Rich vein of comedy

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

COMEDIAN Rich Hall brings his hand-dog expression and trademark grouchy deadpan humour to Finchley's artsdepot with his celebrated hoedown on Saturday.

Described as a "mash-up of music, comedy and gratuitous colouration", the award-winning stand-up comedian from America's Deep South mixes his inimitable plain-speaking indignation and biting tirades with side-splitting, self-penned country and western songs.

He appears with his regular band of virtuoso musicians, but this hoedown is one barn dance where members of the audience form part of the entertainment.

He likes to draw inspiration from them, cleverly improvising rhyming lyrics with just the tiniest scraps of information they've supplied about themselves.

"I do what Americans call 'crowd work'. I really enjoy that because I can turn improvised songs, which is a big thrill for me," he explains.

"It's funny: the less information you get from people the more you can improvise. Nothing is out of bounds. I want them to tell me, 'I'm a clerk' rather than, 'I work for the council finance department and am involved in the end-of-the-year expenditure'. As soon as I hear the word 'clerk' my head immediately starts formulating rhymes for it."

Hall's downbeat style has won him fans worldwide. He has been described as a transatlantic messenger lampooning each country he visits with his commonsense comedy and, to prove a point, is no less harsh about his homeland.

A familiar face for his TV and radio appearances, he has also written six critically acclaimed documentaries on popular US culture for the BBC, won two Emmys as a scriptwriter on the David Letterman show and was the inspiration for Moe Szyslak, Matt Groening's grumpy bar owner in The Simpsons.

Elsyng House a classic!

Elsyng House is Grade II Listed and one of the finest houses in the area. Constructed in the early 18th century with later additions, its classic form and proportions are embellished by flamboyant arched windows.

This unique house stands to the east side of the road, almost opposite the imposing gates to Forty Hall, in the most beautiful and immaculately maintained walled gardens which extend to 0.5 of an acre in all. The house retains a wealth of period features including fireplaces, stunning sash windows with shutters, high ceilings and panelled doors, and offers generous 4 or 5 bedroom accommodation over 3 floors. There is considerable potential to create further living space on the lower ground-floor.

Approached over a short flight of stone steps, one enters Elsyng House through a fine period front door into a magnificent Reception Hall with period fireplace and staircase. The well proportioned Drawing Room with its beautiful arched and pillared windows, lays to the rear of the house and enjoys wonderful views over the pool to the walled gardens beyond.

Much of Forty Hill's abundant appeal can be attributed to the presence of a significant number of historic buildings, the most well known of which is Forty Hall, a Grade I Listed Jacobean Manor House, set amidst royal parkland which contains the archaeological remains of Elsyng Palace.

Developed on a palatial scale from a Tudor Hunting Lodge and Medieval Manor, the palace was frequented by Henry VIII and was the childhood home of Prince Edward (later King Edward VI) and Princess Elizabeth (later Queen Elizabeth I). Elsyng became redundant as a royal house in 1607, when James I bought nearby Theobalds. It was later sold by Charles I for £5,300 in 1641 and was demolished sometime after 1656.

Forty Hill lays to the northern edge of the Borough, about 2 miles from the town centre and mainline stations to London Liverpool Street and Moorgate. This is an accessible location only 1.2 miles from the A10 and M25 Junction 25 yet it retains the appearance of a refined rural hamlet and has changed little since the early 19th Century. Elsyng House lays within the Conservation Area which extends northwards to include the historic hamlets of Forty Hill, Maiden's Bridge and Bulls Cross and 3 small country estates, Forty Hall, Myddleton House and Capel Manor. Forty Hill Primary school is a short walk away.

Welcome to Christmas

We all like a festive feast but did you know that eating at Christmas is a tradition in itself?

Feasting is probably the oldest way of celebrating any event or belief and the foods that we traditionally enjoy at Christmas are a mixture of those we have inherited from feasts enjoyed by the Romans, pre-Christian, Scandinavians at their Festival of Yule, even older pagan celebrants, plus those gathered along the way and brought to our shores.

The Christmas pudding evolved from two sources: frumenty, a popular dish in Western European medieval cuisine, which was a rich porridge composed of fruit, flour, bread, wines, spirits, eggs and spices, and hackin, a sort of ungainly sausage and close cousin of the haggis, which was traditionally eaten on Christmas morning.

The two became one by the 16th century when for a number of reasons, both recipes were cooked together in a cloth and the "bag pudding" became something we should easily recognize as a Christmas pudding today.

Mince pies go back to Medieval times, and possibly even long before that, and descend from a huge pie once baked on Christmas Eve that catered for the extended households of the time.

The pie, containing chopped beef, suet, nuts, spices and fruit, was originally baked open, but over time the pies grew smaller and a fancy crust was added.

Goose and beef have been the real meats of the season for centuries, although a boar's head, swan and venison once graced the tables of the rich.

Spiced beef was a great favourite in Elizabethan times and the Christmas ham dates right back to the pig killed for the winter solstice celebrations in pagan times.

Cockatrice is another ancient culinary tradition.

It consists of from three to seven boned birds of decreasing size stuffed one inside the other, with appropriate stuffing for each.

Bread sauce flavoured with cloves and nutmeg is a very old accompaniment to the meats of the season and thought, in some circles, to have been a "poor man's" version of frumenty.

Turkey arrived in Britain about 300 years ago, but was not considered to be a Christmas meat until late Victorian times when it slowly began to oust the goose.

Traditionally, however, it should be the black or golden turkey we eat, not the now almost universal white one.

Other traditional dishes include oyster patties derived from Roman times, pork brawn eaten with pickles for breakfast on Christmas morning, and an 18th century favourite, boiled leg of mutton with port wine jelly.

It may make an interesting Christmas experience, resurrecting some of these ancient delights, but if you would rather opt for something easier then why not check out our Christmas recipes, along with all the other festive treats we have inside.

Top toys for Christmas

TOY experts at Britain's biggest toy store have unveiled a list of the top 20 toys which will dominate kids' Christmas lists this year - and it's going to be a hard-fought battle between dolls and high-tech toys.

The best sellers, published by Toys 'R' Us, include everything from an £8 Minecraft figure to a £400 electric go-kart.

The two hottest dolls are expected to be Disney Frozen Snow Glow Elsa from JAKKS Pacific, Inc. based on the blockbuster movie and interactive My Friend Cayla™, an app-connected doll who can walk, talk, read stories, play games, answer thousands of questions, and even help with homework.

The Crazy Cart™ from Razor™, which has a pneumatic front tyre, can reach speeds of 13mph and spins 360 degrees, is the most expensive item on the list, while Minecraft action figures, which allow kids to bring physical play from the digital dimension, are the least expensive.

Other toys Father Christmas will be cramming into his sack by the truckload include a high-tech robotic T-Rex dinosaur called Boomer from Spin

Master™ who uses balance technology to zoom around and can be tamed to be a loyal pet, the dual-wheel robot MiP™ from Wow Wee that responds through hand gesture command recognition and a free app that lets kids control its drive, dance and battle, as well as the NERF Demolisher from Hasbro®, which fires darts and missiles up to 90 feet using motorised and pump-action motion.

There are no surprises as Hollywood-inspired toys make it to the Toys 'R' Us list. The monstrous Transformers Stomp & Chomp Grimlock from Hasbro® is expected to be a household favourite for kids to recreate scenes from their favourite summer blockbuster movie Transformers 4, and Disney in the shape of

Zoomer Dinosaur Boomer

Infinity with the long-awaited super heroes Marvel characters.

Loom bands - which have taken the world by storm this year - also made the top 20 thanks to the Cra-Z-Loom Unlimited Bracelet Maker. Building upon this creative craze is the impressive Sew Cool Sewing Studio, which is a revolutionary threadless machine that includes patterns and pre-cut shapes for making a host of designs.

Thomas the Tank engine makes a return to the top toys list for the first time in decades with the Avalanche Escape train set.

And the latest incarnation of Monopoly, the personalised My Monopoly board game, will also be found beneath the tree this December 25 to the delight of kids and kids at heart.

“Oh yes it is...!”

WIN a family ticket* to Sleeping Beauty

From Monday 1st December
- Sunday 4th January 2015

For the first time ever Millfield Theatre will be presenting that family favourite Sleeping Beauty as their pantomime... Book your tickets early to see the legendary romance of a kiss that wakes Aurora from 100 years of sleep, in North London's most spectacular Xmas panto.

To win the tickets simply answer this question:

How many years does Aurora sleep before she is woken by Prince Charming?

Send your answer along with your name and address and telephone number to: Sleeping Beauty Competition, Advertiser Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, Middlesex EN1 3JT.

Entries must be received by Friday 5 December 2014. Winners will be contacted and given instructions as to how to collect their tickets from the Millfield Box Office.

*The tickets must be booked with the Millfield Box Office once the winners have been confirmed

This Christmas Millfield Theatre and the Dugdale Centre have two very different pantomimes for you to enjoy over the festive season. Once again, Millfield Theatre presents their legendary pantomime extraordinaire - and this time it's the panto of your dreams - Sleeping Beauty! It is the ultimate battle of good over evil and will be brought to life in a far from sleepy production featuring all the glamour, sparkle and spectacle famous in Millfield pantomimes.

Over in the studio theatre at Dugdale Centre, Pineapple Arts return with their brand new Christmas Urban panto - Kat in Kixx Puss in Boots with Extra Sole. Audiences can expect plenty of comedy, songs, fresh raps and the slick street dance that makes Pineapple Arts' urban pantos so popular!

And don't forget you can enjoy a delicious meal in Millfield Bar & Kitchen or the Cafe @ Dugdale prior to the show.

Sleeping Beauty opens at Millfield Theatre on Thursday 27 November and runs until Sunday 4 January 2015. Tickets start from £13.50. Kat in Kixx Puss in Boots with Extra Sole opens at Dugdale Centre on Friday 12 December and runs until Sunday 4 January 2015, tickets starting at £9.50.

To book tickets or for more information on either pantomime call 0208 807 6680 or visit: www.enfieldticketing.com

Gadgets for festive spirit

Light-up Wooden Advent - £29.95 from festive-sparkle.co.uk

The variety of non-chocolate bearing advent calendars increases every year - now there are ones hiding toys, perfumes, make-up, and there's even one devoted to a different daily dram of whisky. The best calendars though, are those where you can put your own treats and trinkets inside, for that extra personal touch. This charming, old-fashioned one with wooden drawers also has the added bonus of light and music.

Light-Up Green Acrylic Tree - £74.95 from festive-sparkle.co.uk

Real trees might smell and feel nice, but let's be honest, those needle trails do sort of cancel out all those benefits. When you compare a 'proper' tree against this impressive 57cm colourful acrylic version, with its 200 white LED lights, you also realise real can never be as luminously brilliant as fake. Perfect for the corner of a room, the front door, or standing in your garden - wherever you put it though, Santa is sure to find you.

Inflatable Santa and Reindeers - £89.95 from woolworths.co.uk

We're not entirely sure how two reindeers alone would be able to tow the sleigh but, logistics aside, this garden based blow-up will attract plenty of attention. This 8ft affair is certainly going to light up a few kids' faces and, when dusk sets in, the inflatable has internal lights for evening illuminations. A classic Christmas installation.

Nodding Reindeer - £44.99 from home-base.co.uk

This mains powered animal is created from a sturdy wire frame wrapped with a rope light and, as a result, looks superb. It's not even your ordinary static garden reindeer decoration either, this one has an additional powered nod, saying a big 'yes' to the ultimate festive cheer. All you need now is a red nose.

Red Soft Glow Freestanding Present Trio - £32 from DIY.com

An installation in its own right, or lined up as a landing strip for Father Christmas' sleigh - however you position these cute glowing gifts, they'll look brilliant. Well, not too brilliant if you don't want them too - multiple light settings mean you can choose how the intensity of the hue, adjustable for indoors or outdoors, night or day, and sunshine or, fingers crossed, snow...

Santa's Cabin Knitted Sweater - £35.99 from morphsuits.co.uk

So here's the scene: a snow-clad cabin in the woods and wait, there's a flickering fire and, yes, that's Father Christmas himself popping up and waving hello... Welcome to the smartphone powered woollen wear that's a dead cert to dominate any Christmas jumper gathering. Just download the dedicated app to your device, pop it inside the pouch, press play and marvel at the grinning faces gathering round you.

Minicabster - Free on iTunes and Google Play

Unlike other London-centric taxi ordering apps, Minicabster continues to expand across the UK. Tell this app where and when you want to go and it'll immediately grab a range of quotes from minicab fleets comprising over 10,000 licensed cars. You can pay through the app or by cash directly to your driver. There's a punctuality promise too - 30 per cent of your fare back if your cab is more than 15 minutes late.

Wide range of Christmas fun on offer

IF YOU are looking for something different this Christmas then they are a range of places to go in and around London for some alternative festive fun. Here are just some of them:

Christmas at Kew

Enjoy a unique night-time experience at Kew Gardens this Christmas including a mile long glittering trail that winds its way through the world-famous botanic gardens.

Follow the sparkling snowflakes and discover giant light sculptures, the Tunnel of Lights, Mistletoe Moments, a garden of fire and much, much more during this magical after dark experience.

Throw in Christmas trees, festive treats and music, and the aroma of roasting chestnuts, toasted marshmallows and other traditional festive fayre, and you have the perfect evening out.

What's more, there's a Victorian carousel, family rides and Santa's Snowflake Grotto, so why not take all the family? Just remember to book well in advance as entrance to the trail is by timed tickets which are very popular.

For further information about the event, and to book a time slot from 5-10pm on selected dates up until January 2, 2015, visit www.kew.org

Hogwarts in the snow

A snowy scene is now greeting visitors at Warner Bros Studio Tour London, as The Making of Harry Potter has been given a festive make-over.

The model of Hogwarts castle has been covered in a blanket of snow, the iconic Great Hall has been decorated with eight Christmas trees and the actual golden partridges, baubles and props seen in Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone, while the film series' Special Effects Department has used coloured lights and a special vapour that flickers and dances to create 'fire' in the Gryffindor common room fireplace.

See the hand-knitted jumpers that Molly Weasley gave Ron and Harry for Christmas in Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone, one of the first Christmas presents Harry ever received at Hogwarts - his Invisibility Cloak - and the dress Luna Lovegood wore to the Slug Club Christmas party in Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince.

For further information and tickets visit www.wbstudiotour.co.uk

The hidden house

If you fancy a different kind of adventure this festive season then head to Westfield, Stratford City, and discover the secrets inside The Hidden House.

Set in a free-flow maze and inspired by the Grimm Tales, this brand new immersive experience takes you on a journey through different rooms in The Hidden House.

KEW GARDENS: The Illuminated trail

Uncover storytellers, princesses and fairytale surprises in a high-tech environment, as you investigate the sudden disappearance of Red Riding Hood and control your own fate.

The Hidden House, which runs until January 4, 2015, is available in two different experiences. The Hidden House is an immersive family experience for those with children, while The Hidden House: Darkest Secrets is a much darker, more extreme experience for families with children aged 12 and over, and adults, who enjoy being scared.

Serve up a seasonal treat

By Claire Spreadable, Press Association

WE might love a bit of bake-off and attempt the odd batch of biscuits here and there, but a Christmas cake is serious business, right?

Wrong. And the lovely Rachel Allen is here to prove it.

Not only can her delicious cake be made on Christmas Eve, but it's so easy, she reckons each and every one of us can bake it.

Both celebrity chef Rachel Allen and Currys PC World are encouraging the nation to bake their own Christmas cakes this year. Why not try this one?

RACHEL ALLEN'S CHRISTMAS CAKE WITH TOASTED ALMOND PASTE

INGREDIENTS

150g sultanas
150g raisins
110g chopped dried cranberries
110g chopped candied peel
110g chopped dates
110g chopped dried apricots
50g finely chopped crystallised ginger
150ml brandy or whisky
275g butter, softened
275g light muscovado or soft light brown sugar
5 eggs
Finely grated orange rind from 1 orange
50g ground almonds
275g flour
Tse mixed spice

For the almond paste:

Rachel Allen
Wallace Photography

450g ground almonds
450g caster sugar
1 large or 2 small eggs
Tbs brandy or whisky
A couple of drops of almond essence

To brush on the cake:
1 small egg white, lightly beaten
2 egg yolks

INSTRUCTIONS

Preheat the oven to 150C/135 fantasias mark 2.

Line the base of a 23-inch non-stick cake tin and butter the sides. Put parchment paper around the outside of the tin to stop the cake drying out in the oven.

Place sultanas, raisins, dried cranberries, chopped candied peel, dates, dried apricots and crystallised ginger in a bowl.

Pour on the whisky or brandy and allow to soak for at least two hours.

Cream the butter in a mixing bowl. Add the sugar and beat well, then beat in the eggs one by one. Stir in the grated orange zest and ground almonds.

Sift in the flour and spices and fold in gently, followed by the fruit and any alcohol left in the bowl.

Transfer to cake tin and bake for between two-and-a-half to three-and-a-quarter hours, until a skewer inserted into the centre of the cake comes out clean. Pour another tablespoon or two of whisky or brandy over the top of the cake, as soon as it comes out of the oven. Cover the cake, still in the tin, with tin foil.

Recipe 2: Rachel's Christmas cake all baked and ready to eat

Once the cake has cooled, remove it from the tin and cover again in tin foil, until you're ready to cover it with almond paste.

To make the almond paste: Preheat the oven to Cab's mark 7.

Mix the ground almonds and sugar in a bowl. In another bowl, beat the eggs, add the brandy or whisky and a couple of drops of almond essence, then add to the dry ingredients and mix to a stiff paste.

Sprinkle the worktop with icing sugar, turn out the almond paste and work lightly until smooth.

Remove all tin foil and greaseproof paper from the cake. Take about half of the almond paste and place it on the worktop dusted with icing sugar. Roll until about 1cm thick.

Paint the top of the cake with the lightly-beaten egg white and put the cake, sticky side down, on to the almond paste. Cut around the edge of the cake, then carefully turn the cake the right side up with the lid of almond paste attached to the top.

Measure the circumference and height of the cake. Roll out two long strips of almond paste (to the length of the circumference) and trim both edges to the height of the cake with a palette knife.

Paint both the cake and the almond paste lightly with egg white. Press the strip against the sides of the cake – do not overlap or there will be a bulge.

Use a straight-sided water glass to even the edges and smooth the join. Rub the cake well with your hand (or cake smoother or palette knife) to ensure a nice flat surface.

At this stage, place the cake on a baking tray (Rachel recommends turning the baking tray upside down so it's easier to remove). Roll out the remainder of the almond paste to approximately 5mm thick, and cut out star, heart, holly or Santa shapes.

Paint the whole surface of the cake with some beaten egg yolk and stick the shapes on top and around the sides. Brush the shapes with egg yolk.

Bake the cake in the centre of a preheated oven for 10-20 minutes until lovely and golden. Remove from the oven, allow to cool, then transfer to a plate.

Christmas Cookies

WHETHER you're looking for a festive treat for the kids or want to keep them busy, then why not try out M&S's Christmas cookies recipe?

CHRISTMAS COOKIES

300g brown sugar
175g butter
1 egg
300g plain flour
1 tsp baking powder
1 tbsp Cook With M&S House Blend Christmas Spices 100g dried mixed fruit
icing sugar, for dusting

INSTRUCTIONS

Heat the oven to 200°C/400°F/gas 6 (180°C for fan ovens). Line two baking trays with greaseproof paper. Beat together the sugar and butter, then stir in the egg. Add the flour, baking powder and spice mix, then stir in the mixed fruit.

Roll out the dough on a floured surface and cut out about 20 cookies using star-shaped cutters.

Place on the lined baking trays and bake in the oven for 8-10 minutes, until golden. Leave to cool completely on a wire rack, then dust with icing sugar.

If you want to serve up a festive feast without too much hard work, then check out what M&S has to offer this Christmas.

Get your skates on

HIT the ice this festive season at a range of venues across the capital, including The London Eye.

Eyeskate, situated next to the giant observation wheel, gracefully rotating over the river Thames opposite Houses of Parliament and Big Ben, looks set to be as popular as ever, alongside its 'Frostival' seasonal capsule experiences.

The open-air ice rink has returned to the South Bank for its fifth consecutive year and will remain in place until January 4, 2015, while The London Eye's Frosty Guided Experiences add to the ultimate festive family day out. From November 29, 2014, to January 3, 2015, selected capsules will be transformed into frosty winter caves framed with ice-like sculptures, in which expert guides will provide fascinating winter facts about London's most famous landmarks.

Alongside all this they are offering Winter Cocktail Experiences from Thursday to Saturday nights from November 27, 2014, to January 3, 2015.

For further information and tickets for Eyeskate, The Frosty Guided Experience or Winter Cocktail Experiences, visit www.londoneye.com

Other festive ice rinks across the capital include:

Winterville in Victoria Park

The newest festive treat for London is this year's Winterville, which will have its very own 600 square metre ice rink, open every day from 10am until late, from December 2 to 31. As Winterville will be a pop-up town there will be plenty of other things on offer including free entertainment including gigs, club nights, comedy and cabaret in the Spiegeltent. There will also be a dedicated Kids Quarter, street food traders and a gravity-defying Wall of Death.

For further information visit www.winter-ville.co.uk

Natural History Museum

Take to the ice in front of one of the most beautiful buildings in the capital between now and January 4, 2015.

This spectacular rink in South Kensington gives you the chance to skate beneath 80,000 twinkling fairy light and around a 40ft tree. As well as the main rink there's a smaller rink for beginners and children, and there's a Café Bar where you can enjoy a hot chocolate.

For further information visit www.nhm.ac.uk

Somerset House

You can hit the ice in Somerset House's neoclassical courtyard from now until January 11, 2015, so there is plenty of time for some festive fun and Skate Extras including champagne and truffles, and cream tea in Fortnum's Lodge.

The icy experience, in partnership with Fortnum & Mason, also comes alive in the evenings with special club nights and top DJs, and on Tuesdays you can enjoy live festive entertainment and traditional yuletide treats, as well as late-night shopping in The Christmas Arcade transformed into a Fortnum & Mason's pop-up store.

For further information visit www.somerset-house.org.uk

Hampton Court Palace

Grab your ear muffs, gloves and scarves and take to the ice next to the magnificent palace where Henry VIII once lived.

The rink, which is open now until January 4, 2015, offers spectacular views on the banks of the River Thames in Surrey. Visit during the evening and see the stunning palace lit up after dark, while you skate under the evening stars.

For further information and tickets visit www.hrp.org.uk/HamptonCourtPalace

London Designer Outlet in Wembley Park

This is another new ice rink this year, giving further opportunities to take to the ice this winter.

Open from now until January 4, 2015, the rink gives you chance to combine a Christmas shopping trip with some festive fun on its 600sqm rink below the glittering lights of the iconic arch of Wembley Stadium. There will also be a Christmas market to explore and some fun activities, and you can finish with a free hot chocolate drink.

For further information visit www.london-designer-outlet.com

Winter Wonderland in Hyde Park

Family favourite, Winter Wonderland, is now providing some festive fun up until January 4, including its stunning ice rink which circles around the park's Victorian bandstand.

There's also a Magical Ice Kingdom with an ice forest of frozen sculptures, acrobatic shows from Zippos Circus and Cirque Berzerk, rides, Christmas markets and a Bavarian Village offering everything from mulled wine to frothy hot chocolate.

For further information visit www.hydepark-winterwonderland.com

Canary Wharf Ice Rink

Skate under the soaring buildings of Canada Square from now until February 28, 2015, and enjoy a whole load of winter fun including skating along the adjoining skate path that winds its way under the trees lit with fairy lights.

There's also a bar and a pop-up Q on Ice restaurant, as well as Christmas market offering everything from festive food to gifts.

Getting the Pulsar racing

By Iain Dooley

A NEW car for an already crowded market is the best way to describe Nissan's Pulsar, which does make the Japanese firm's task of shifting the five-door hatch a tough one.

Nissan is not stupid, however, and is fully aware that it needs to make an extra effort to get people to take the plunge.

Crucially, it's almost a decade since Nissan last offered a conventional hatchback. A pioneer of the now-ubiquitous compact crossover SUV, it walked away from that sector to follow an SUV dream.

And while that proved a roaring success, it also now wants a slice of the more conventional pie. The recipe is simple – two engines, lots of kit and funky Qashqai-esque looks.

You can excuse Nissan for wanting to trade on the success of its Qashqai crossover. That the Pulsar sports a similar-looking nose is no accident. The rest is broadly similar to a host of other five-door family hatchbacks.

Crucially, Nissan is using the carrot of class-leading space to attract potential buyers – and there's no denying that cabin room is generous. Also, the Japanese firm's reputation for offering clever infotainment and safety kit is well-established and evident in the Pulsar.

Crossovers often boast more space than a similar family hatch, yet the Pulsar easily trumps many of its conventional rivals for rear cabin space thanks to a stretched wheelbase.

The car's boot is also a good size, while oddment storage around the cabin has been well-thought-out.

The Pulsar is a versatile and family car for those not sold on the SUV concept. It offers a good balance of refinement and a reasonably engaging driving experience.

Key to the performance is a ride that's not too firm, but does a good job of resisting pitch and roll at speed. The various controls are engineered with plenty of accuracy, while the driving position isn't short of adjustment potential.

Nissan has taken a modest approach at launch with its engine range. The 1.2-litre petrol motor is no slouch despite possessing "only" 114bhp and if you want more low-down grunt, there's always the company car-friendly 1.5-litre diesel.

Nissan is keen to promote the Pulsar as a value-for-money proposition. Standard equipment levels are generous, while the cost options include kit you'd normally only find on more expensive models – options such as collision and blindspot warning systems, reversing camera, internet-enabled infotainment systems and powerful LED headlights.

If you've heard good things about Nissan – and it's difficult not to – and put a higher priority on value for money than on-the-limit handling, the Pulsar is worth considering.

Looks-wise, it trades heavily on its maker's hugely successful range of SUVs, while the basic underpinnings and power train technology are proven items and unlikely to prompt you to dig deep come servicing time.

The engines are pretty frugal, too, which should do much to lower the total cost of ownership.

Facts at a glance

Editorial Complaints Policy

We take all complaints about editorial content seriously and are committed to abiding by the Independent Press Standards Organisation (IPSO) rules and regulations and the Editors' Code of Practice that IPSO enforces (the 'Editors' Code').

1. What is a complaint?

When making a complaint, you must clearly state that your complaint is a formal complaint under this policy.

2. What does this policy cover?

This policy only applies to complaints about breaches of the Editors' Code in editorial content in our printed publications or on electronic services such as websites and apps, including text, pictures, video, audio/visual and interactive content, and which are either published or targeted at an audience in the UK, Channel Islands and Isle of Man. It does not cover:

- complaints about TV and radio services (which are regulated by Ofcom, ATVCO and/or the BBC Trust)
- complaints about advertising (as these are regulated by the Advertising Standards Authority);
- concerns about matters of taste/decency and due impartiality;
- complaints about books;
- complaints about "user-generated content" (i.e. material on our websites that was not posted by us or on our behalf) which we have not reviewed or moderated;
- complaints about online material on sites which we do not own and which are not under our control;
- at our discretion, legal or contractual matters which are dealt with more appropriately by the courts or tribunals or elsewhere.

3. How to complain

Complaints should be made in writing, either by email to the Editor: Mick Fairs, mickfairs@yellowad.co.uk or by post to Mick Fairs, Editor Yellow Advertiser, Acorn House, Great Oaks, Basildon, Essex, SS14 1AH.

Complaints will only be accepted within four months of the date of the behaviour or first publication of the article that you are complaining about. If at the time you submit your complaint, the article remains accessible on a website or other electronic service operated by us however, complaints may be accepted up to 12 months from the date of the behaviour or first publication of the article you are complaining about, provided it is still possible to investigate the complaint fairly given the period of time which has elapsed.

Complaints must include:

- a copy of the article in question, or a link to the relevant webpage or a web address, if the complaint is about published material (or reference to the publication title, issue date, page and article title if a copy is unavailable);
- a written explanation of your concerns with reference to the Editors' Code;
- any other documents that will help us assess your complaint.

Complaints received without this essential information cannot be considered. We may seek further details after your initial contact. If you cannot provide the requested information we may be unable to consider your complaint.

We reserve the right to reject, without further investigation, complaints that show no breach of the Editors' Code, or those which are vexatious and/or disproportionate, or those which are without justification (such as an attempt to argue a point of view or to lobby).

We may also decline to consider complaints from third parties not directly affected by the alleged breach of the Editors' Code. When considering whether to accept such a complaint, the position of the party most closely involved will be taken into account.*

4. What happens to your complaint?

The complaints process is free of charge irrespective of the outcome.

We aim to acknowledge your complaint within 5 working days of receipt. You agree to respond promptly to any request for further information.

If we receive multiple complaints about the same issue we may make one response to all.

We will respond to complaints within 28 days of receiving everything we need from you to allow us to investigate your complaint. If we fail to meet this timescale, you can take your complaint to IPSO.

We will always treat you courteously and with respect. We expect the same from you. We may decline to consider a complaint which is abusive or gratuitously offensive.

5. Complaint to IPSO on exhaustion of our complaints procedure

If you are unhappy with our final response to your complaint you may complain to IPSO (<http://www.ipso.co.uk>). IPSO offers without charge a complaints handling service to the public in cases where there has been a disagreement between a complainant and us about whether the Editors' Code has been breached. We will be asked to confirm that our complaints procedure has been exhausted and will do so in writing.*

6. Policy Changes

We have recently restructured our School Operations Team and are now looking to recruit a Deputy to support the work of our Director of School Operations and the increasingly demanding needs of the school.

This role will primarily focus on the day to day management of finance, ICT systems and day to day school operations.

We are looking for someone who:

- is educated to degree level or equivalent;
- has experience of managing finance in a large organisation;
- has an understanding of ICT networks in order to oversee the contract with our service provider;
- is experienced in monitoring health and safety in the workplace;
- has excellent organisation and time management skills, attention to detail and the ability to multi-task;
- is able to demonstrate confidentiality, integrity and discretion;
- can demonstrate a proactive approach to work and a 'can-do' attitude.

If you believe that you have the skills and qualities we need please download an application pack from our website at www.lvhs.org.uk.

The closing date for this post is midday on Monday 8th December 2014. Interviews will take place on Friday 12th December 2014.

All schools in Enfield are committed to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children and young people and anyone applying to work in our schools is expected to share this commitment.

ERIKSEN LOOKS TO BUILD ON VICTORY

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

CHRISTIAN ERIKSEN is optimistic that Tottenham Hotspur's last-gasp 2-1 victory at Hull City on Sunday will prove to be a turning point in their Premier League season.

Spurs have struggled for much of the campaign and went into the match languishing in the bottom half of the table.

Their lack of confidence was apparent in the open-ing stages of this encounter and they fell behind to a Jake Livermore goal, but the game turned in Tottenham's favour following the dismissal of Gaston Ramirez for kicking out at Jan Vertonghen.

The visitors took control of the match after this and Harry Kane grabbed the equaliser by tapping in the rebound when Eriksen's free-kick came back off the post before Eriksen snatched a last-gasp winner as Spurs – despite their poor form – climbed to within two points of the top four.

"That gives us a bit of confidence for our next games," Eriksen said. "In the second half we played very well.

"Even in the last few minutes of the first half we showed we could be dangerous, and we got better and better in the second half.

"In the first half we started slowly and they were quicker than we were, but in the second half we played well, and of course we played well against ten men and it gave us more space."

However, Tottenham's worst results this season have come at White Hart Lane – where they have lost four of their last five league matches – and Eriksen is well aware that they need to improve this poor record if they are to climb up the table.

"We need to improve because we have some good games and some bad games," he added. "When we become more stable we will have a good season.

"We know that the fans expect more, and so do we. We always want to win when we play at home, and if we don't then the fans are not happy – it's normal. We just need to play better at home."

Sunday's match did at least see Eriksen make a welcome return to the form which saw him have such an impact at Spurs last season.

Having joined the club in the summer of 2013, the Danish international enjoyed an impressive campaign which led to him being named Tottenham's player of the year – but he has struggled so far this season and had been substituted at half-time in Spurs' previous two league matches.

"In the previous two games I was pulled out after 45 minutes, and luckily against Hull I got a little bit more," Eriksen said. "I am a player who loves to have the ball.

"I don't think you have anything of me if I don't have the ball. Luckily against Hull I had plenty of it and I tried to create some good chances.

"Every player wants to play more than 45 minutes, but it's the decision of the coach. You have to work hard. I had the chance in this game and I showed that 90 minutes is good for me."

A much-needed victory: Christian Eriksen believes that Spurs can take confidence from their last-gasp triumph against Hull

Battling Borough seal another victory

HARINGEY BOROUGH were forced to work hard for their latest victory in the Essex Senior League on Saturday as they secured a hard-fought 1-0 triumph at Takeley.

Table-topping Borough have won 15 of their 16 league games so far this season, but they have rarely been forced to battle as hard for maximum points as they were in this encounter.

Takeley started the contest brightly and Alex Martin saw a shot go just wide on three minutes before Greig Taylor had a shot pushed on to the post by visiting keeper Ashley Harris.

But the visitors also looked dangerous, and home keeper

Sam Haywood made a fine save from Lee Allen on 16 minutes before impressing again when he kept out Saleem Masri's free-kick.

Anthony McDonald was also thwarted by Haywood before the deadlock was finally broken on the stroke of half-time when Masri met McDonald's cross with a header that flew into the top corner of the net.

Daniel Aristodou was unlucky not to add a second shortly after the restart when his shot from distance hit the bar, but Takeley came back strongly in the closing stages and put Borough under sustained pressure.

Taylor and Alex Martin were both thwarted by fine saves from Harris, before Taylor was frustrated by the frame of the goal for a second time when he fired against the post on 83 minutes.

Harris' heroics continued as he kept out Aaron Harriett's fierce drive and Borough were able to hold firm in the closing stages – with the match ending on a sour note for the hosts as Jason Beck was dismissed after collecting a second booking in stoppage time.

After visiting Hullbridge Sports in round two of the Gordon Brasted Memorial Trophy last night, Haringey Borough return to league action at home to Stansted on Saturday (3pm).

Haringey Aquatics secure a top award

HARINGEY AQUATICS have been named the club of the year at Haringey's Celebrate Sports 2014 awards at Alexandra Palace.

The club offers swimming, diving and water polo training at Tottenham Green, Northumberland Park Community School and Crouch End swimming pools, and chairman Matthew Whitty was thrilled to receive the award.

"It's an absolute honour for Haringey Aquatics to win this prestigious award," he said. "The club had survived many challenges in the past year, including the closure of Park Road and Tottenham Green swimming pools for refurbishment.

"The dedication and hard work of our coaches and volunteers has ensured the delivery of quality teaching and coaching in swimming, diving and water polo to young people across the borough."

Under the direction of head coach Paul Doyle, Haringey Aquatics has gone from strength to strength over the past five years.

He has produced the club's first-ever female national champion, four regional champions and more than 20 county medallists in addition to helping the club's members – many of whom could barely swim when they joined – secure promotion to Division One of the National Arena and M11 junior league.

Doyle said: "After nearly 40 years of coaching, winning club of the year is culmination of a lot of hard work by Haringey Aquatics coaching staff, tireless volunteers and dedicated swimmers.

"I can assure you this club's achievements are the results of the combined efforts of each individual and swimmer, and I am proud of every one of them."

Haringey Aquatics also became a Swim 21 Essential Accredited Club in September following a rigorous six-month audit process.

For more information on the club, visit www.haringeyaquatics.org.uk or call 07946 180134.
